

RESTORING BROOK TROUT

The Brook Trout is New Hampshire's only native stream dwelling trout, a symbol of the outdoors, is a species of concern.

The Brook Trout is a good indicator of water quality in our states' lakes, rivers and streams. A collaborative effort spanning from Maine to Georgia is working toward restoring and protecting Brook Trout populations and their habitat. This presentation explains their New Hampshire Story.

Don Allen – Fish & Wildlife Steward (NHFG)

will give a presentation on restoring native trout in New Hampshire

Friday, April 12, 6:30 PM,

Effingham Public Library, 30 Townhouse Rd.

Co-sponsors: Effingham Conservation Commission; UNHCE/Taking Action for Wild Life; Effingham Public Library;